

party led by the peerless chemist, George T. Austin, '36, bravely ventured into the basement to discover the cause of the disturbance. It was only Warren Wisnasky, '36, trying out the new public address microphone he had made.

The loss of our President, T. Q. Hoffman, '36, was quite a shock to us all. Unfortunately, Brother Hoffman was forced to leave school temporarily in order to restore his body to its former healthy condition. A month's vacation amidst the scenic beauty of Florida is Ted's chosen means of recreation.

A new President was elected to serve during Ted's absence at the Formal Council held for that purpose. The man in whose capable hands rest the destinies of some fifteen frosh is Arnold J. Potteiger, '36.

The efforts of our Rushing Chairman, John B. Kuney, '36, and his co-workers proved to be very effective in securing for our chapter a large number of pledges this fall. Nineteen men in all were pledged and now are helping to fill up the closets with their belongings.

For several weeks the House was a mess of puddles and chewed socks as a result of Lynn B. Snow's, '38, "be kind to dumb animal" attitude. Postulant Snow brought home with him a small rat-like animal which he claimed was a dog. For three weeks Gwendolyn (that was her name), got along famously until she chanced to go out the front door one night just as John Schmid, '36, was coming in. Gwen got her tail severely mangled when the door closed. Well, to make a long tale short, we had to cut it off.

Once more the House work is being done with the utmost expediency as all pledges who were out for football now have a great deal of spare time. Broken fingers, bruised shins and aching muscles are no longer valid as excuses since the football season is over.

Another Phi Kappa man is taking his place in the radio field. He is none other than Deneen Fisher, '34, who is now working for station WGN in Chicago.

Our Dad's Day banquet this year was a huge success, financially and otherwise. It was attended almost 100 per cent by the fathers of both Brothers and Postulants.

Since winter has come the postulants are sitting up nights trying to figure out ways of keeping warm throughout the cold nights in the dorm. Sweat socks, woolen sleeping hats, mufflers, suede jackets, bathrobes and even gloves have taken their places along with what the well dressed man will wear at night. Byron Brown Dressler, '37, has the most unique way of all to keep warm. He goes to bed attired in woolen socks, sweat-pants, a sleeping hood and three water bottles.

Phi Kappa should go far in intramural basketball. Its team is composed of several high school stars. Don Barkley, Bob Holty, Henry Parke, DeVere Goodmiller, Dick Brock, Bob Roane, Art Murphy, Bob Hatch, Harrison Relman, Jay Trost,
