

ILLINOIS

‡ A TOTAL of 16,532 Illini are serving in the armed forces of the United States, according to Alumni association records. This is more than three times the number of Illini who served in World War I.

Sixty per cent of Illini honorably discharged from service in this war have re-enrolled in the University. Illinois is giving them individual counsel, working out special sets of courses and helping them take advantage of state and federal scholarships.

Its personnel bureau is giving any veteran, whether or not he is considering college, free vocational and educational aptitude tests and counselling service, and is counselling veterans on problems of psychological adjustment.

The University's division of Special Services for War Veterans is a central agency to study the needs of veterans; inform and advise them; adjust curricula to meet particular needs; and when educational needs are not met by existing curricula to arrange special curricula and confer degrees. Heading the division is Prof. Sidney E. Glenn '22, a veteran of World War I.

The University will enroll veterans who cannot meet ordinary college entrance requirements but who can show the University registrar that they are capable of doing university work. Credit for training in the services or in other universities or colleges also is determined by the registrar.

Educational benefits for ex-service men and women have been set up: (1) by the state legislature, (2) under the "G. I. Bill of Rights," and (3) in disabled veteran legislation.

Veteran's scholarships in the University were established by the state legislature. Anyone is eligible who served in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps in World War I, or between September 16, 1940, and the termination of World War II, who when entering service was a resident of Illinois or a student in the University, and who was honorably discharged from service. The scholarships provide free matriculation and tuition, not to exceed four years.

The future of fraternities on the Illinois campus is bright in spite of the hardships wrought by the
