

We've laid a few eggs, yes, but of the soft-shelled variety. For instance, there was the time Phil Trimble, '52, while attending a dinner exchange with the Alpha Gam's, was doing a determined job on a tough steak when it sprouted wings, bounced off the plate, slithered across the table and dropped to the floor. Poor old Phil didn't know whether to ignore the darn thing, kick it under the table, or walk over and pick it up. The day was saved, however, when a valiant waiter hurried to the rescue, killed it, and took it back into the kitchen to cook it.

Another Crow feather in our beanies represents our accomplishment with KyRo, our delicate mascot. Not only did he win third in the Alpha Phi Omega Ugly Man Contest, but he has finally let us teach him something. You've heard of "house-broken"? Well KyRo is now the only "outside-broken" dog on campus.

The petition for our third annual "Cave Man Drag" finally passed the Dean of Women's Office and the dance went off with a bang. Leopard and zebra skins predominated this year as compared to last year's dyed cat fur, but the fried chicken, eaten with fingers, was the same.

A shiny new plaque now rests in the library here at the Chapter House for our sponsorship of the "Cutest Couple Contest" in the Spring Carnival. The Carnival, bigger and better this year, boasted a parade a mile and a half long.

Elections have been held since the last issue of THE GARNET AND WHITE and the following Officers installed: President, Donald Horton, '53; Vice-president, Robert McCracken, '53; Ritual Officer, John Alderson, '52; Chaplain, Charles Graham; Secretary, John Malone, '52; and Treasurer, Charles Daubs, '53. Committees have been appointed and are now hard at work.

Don't be surprised if next year's Yearbook sports the picture of a Crow on the cover. Jim Dickson, '52 and John Gillis, '52 have just been elected to two of the three senior managerships. And if that shouldn't be enough for the Yearbook's faculty advisors to handle, Dick Wolfsberger, '53 now holds a junior managership in the same activity.
