THE OPENING of the chapter house took place with the annual house clean-up. In addition to the usual rooms being painted on the second and third floors, the living room received a new coat of paint. Along with the paint came several new pieces of furniture, and we believe that the alumni who have visited the chapter house during the past few years will like the new changes in the living room. The reddish-brown walls are now beige and the brown furniture has been replaced with green and white furniture.

The real reason for all this activity was to make the chapter house ready for fall rush. The work paid off in a new Pledge Class well worth the
