☞ THINGS started happening at 311 E. Armory as the Crows reluctantly made their way back to school after a much too short summer. After everyone, more or less, moved in work started on the House. During registration week, the Crows donned their paint togs and completely repainted the House. Besides this, a new carpet was laid on the stairs and second floor, and new fixtures were installed in the dining room, library and second floor. When all the work was finished, everyone was quite astonished at what we had done!

The most ambitious of the workers were, of course, the new pledges. The Brothers welcomed the new pledges with paint brushes, and the new men soon took the hint. Showing off their new pledge pins are Paul Bond, Park Ridge; Bruce Carlton, Deerfield; Russell Drummond, Chicago; Randolph Farmer, Park Ridge; Richard Figura, Deerfield; Craig Johnson, Park Ridge; Edward Krome, Chicago; Thomas LaMantia, Norridge; Joseph McCausland, Beardstown; John Meyer, Springfield; Beau Randt, Naperville; John Stahl, Illiopolis, and John Wood, Centralia.

The old campus was in its usual state of flux this fall. During the summer, many old houses were torn down to make room for parking lots. The biggest disappointment was that the Thunderbird Restaurant was leveled, a favorite Crow pizza place. In addition, the entire east side of the library was torn up. Oh well, that's progress, I suppose.
